

Monika Altenreiter

Monika Altenreiter is a faculty member of the Institute of Social Work where she has taught international social work, social work in film and literature, and ESP language courses in both the Bachelor and Master program for fifteen years. She holds a master's degree in English & American Studies, French and Business from the University of Graz, Austria, and spent altogether two years in English speaking countries (London/UK, Santa Barbara/USA, Toronto/Canada, Melbourne/Australia). Before starting to teach in higher education she worked as a self-employed language trainer for Business English at companies (Magna STEYR Graz, Andritz Graz). Research interests: representations of age, aging, masculinities and aging in contemporary film, social work education, learner autonomy and CBL (content-based learning), international social work, film and literature in social work.

Email: monika.altenreiter@fb-joanneum.at