

August, 2022

IN THIS ISSUE

Successful completion of “Pilot Classes” impacting students and entrepreneurs.

“We were able to ensure that disciplines without a tradition of working with the environment, i.e., that do not have direct contact with entrepreneurs and companies, will incorporate this methodology of working with real cases for the first time,” said Meritxell Calbet, coordinator of the Pilot Classes Project at Universidad de Viña del Mar. The pilot classes were attended by more than 600 students and 49 external organizations.

MORE

A space for innovation: six InnovaT offices already up and running in Latin America.

InnovaT Offices are a space that provides technology and quality digital resources to Latin American partner universities for the incorporation of active methodologies and digital resources for online teaching in a dynamic way.

MORE

InnovaT Project representatives meet in person in Breda, The Netherlands.

On the campus of the Breda University of Applied Sciences, participants showed their project progress according to plan. “We worked efficiently and effectively during the entire visit,” said Doris Kiendl, InnovaT project coordinator.

MORE

InnovaT Conference: consolidates international teaching network in innovative teaching .

“We have established a network of Higher Education professionals, a community, and we plan to attract more teachers to our network. We will continue our journey towards excellence in teaching and learning,” stressed Clarissa Maierhofer, part of the InnovaT coordination team.

MORE

innovat.education
/Innovat.educacion
youtube